

Sopra Steria renews its historical collaboration with Naval Group

Paris, October 23, 2024 – Sopra Steria, a major player in the European tech sector, announces the renewal of its collaboration with Naval Group. This renewal strengthens the trust-based relationship between the two French players, established since since 2015, and specifically focuses on the product lifecycle management of Naval Group's information system (PLM IS).

Sopra Steria announces the renewal of its contract with Naval Group, through its entity CIMPA, specialized in PLM (Product Lifecycle Management), for an additional five years. This close collaboration with Naval Group's Digital Transformation and Information Systems Department (DTSI) involves the transformation and maintenance of technical information systems for the naval defence leader. This contract complements other services provided by Sopra Steria to Naval Group, particularly related to the development, maintenance, and simulation of critical systems, as well as cybersecurity activities for all French sites.

Managing a wide range of applications serving Naval Group's engineering and various programs, Sopra Steria demonstrates through this collaboration its ability to manage and deploy complex and customized IT solutions in the aeronautics and naval sectors. Sopra Steria's activities notably include support for the development of large-scale digital projects: improving user experience, increasing digital continuity, managing virtual reality rooms, maintaining 3D models of submarines, providing level 1 and 2 support for Dassault Systèmes' 3DEXperience, and so on.

According to Pascal Mottet, General Manager of CIMPA: "This contract perfectly illustrates our commitment to supporting major industrial groups in France in transforming their strategic activities, and to supporting their ambitions on an international scale. Beyond product lifecycle management, we adopt a strategic approach to product information management that integrates and harmonizes all associated data and processes. This approach strengthens communication and collaboration between Naval Group's various teams."

A renewal that is part of a historical and trust-based relationship between Sopra Steria and Naval Group

Initiated in 2015, this collaboration with Naval Group is marked by a strong involvement of Sopra Steria teams at various front office sites, including Nantes Indret, Lorient, Brest, and Cherbourg.

This historical partnership with Naval Group underscores the in-depth mastery of the group's application and technical landscape and the added value of solutions provided by Sopra Steria teams.
